Conclave to Be Brief is The Prevailing Opinion of The College.

Services for Pope Leo were held in Sacred Heart church today. Tomorrow services will take place in all of the cathedrals at which the priests attend.

At the Sacred Heart church in this city, Rev. Father Synan spoke a few minutes in regard to the pope at the funeral services Sunday. This morning a solemn requiem high mass for the late pope was observed at 7:30 o'clock. The choir was present and sang appropriate music. At the conclusion special prayers were offered for the repose of the soul.

A large and worshipful assembly was present.

PANAMA HAS PANIC AT ACTS OF OFFICERS

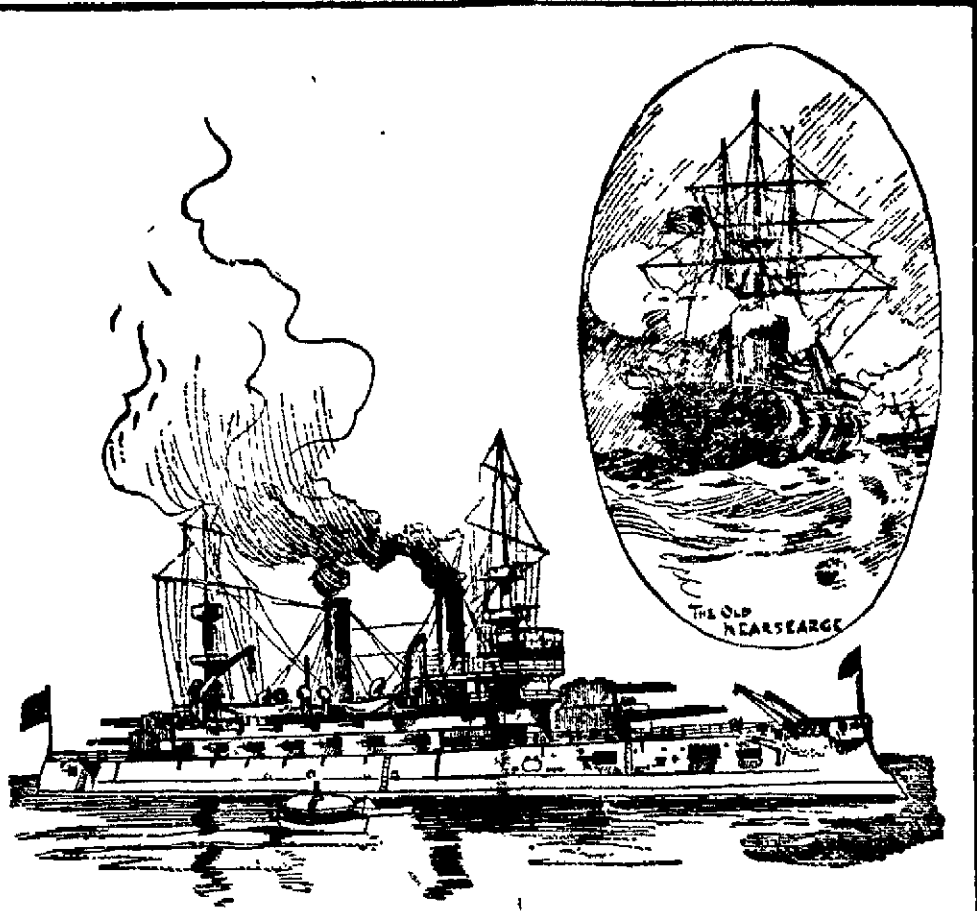

Organ of Liberal Party Paid A Devastating Visit By Army.

[By Telegraph to The Age.] Panama, Colombia, July 27.—Not since the days of the last revolution, when an attack upon the city by the Liberals was feared, has there been such a panic in Panama as occurred last night.

Shortly after 9 o'clock the office of El Lapiz, the organ of the Liberal party on the Isthmus, was visited by officers of the general staff of the army, who destroyed yesterday's edition of the paper. One of the directors was slightly wounded but managed to escape.

As the office of the newspaper is situated in a very populous district, the news spread rapidly. In the Santa Ana neighborhood, where most of the Liberals reside, sentiment rose to a high pitch and a few of the prominent people counseled retaliation. They took no action, however.

The next event came like a bombshell. A company of soldiers, appar-

THE GREAT SEA TEST OF THE BATTLESHIP KEARSARGE. Uncle Sam's new battleship Kearsarge, ordered across the Atlantic from Portsmouth, England, to Frenchman's bay, Maine, at race speed, is to determine whether her boilers and engines will stand the strain. The old Kearsarge, which fought the Alabama, was lost on Roncador reef, Windward islands, in 1894.

Big Battleship Speeds Across Ocean at 13 Knot Gait---Trip Takes But Nine Days.

[By Telegraph to The Age.] Bar Harbor, July 27.—The big battleship Kearsarge arrived at Bar Harbor at 5:42 Sunday from her trip through English waters, making a run from Portsmouth, England, across the Atlantic, a distance of almost 3,000 miles in less than ten days, which is a source of gratification to her officers and crew, as well as to the navy department at Washington.

All day the shore path had been thronged with people anxiously watching the eastern horizon for the first glimpse of the famous ship, but it was not until 5 o'clock that her immense hull appeared out of the mist in the east. Coming at full speed the ship entered the harbor and passed the other ships of the squadron at anchor, then proceeding to the upper harbor, where the battleship Illinois, with Admiral Baker on board, was anchored.

Washington, July 27.—A great deal of interest was taken by naval officers in Washington in the run of the Kearsarge from Portsmouth to Frenchman's Bay. It was estimated before the vessel left England that with good weather she would make the run across the ocean within ten days and this prediction has been verified. Estimating that she traveled about 3,000 miles, the speed of the Kearsarge would average approximately between 13 1-10 and 13 1-4 knots per hour. While the run the vessel just made is not at all remarkable yet it is satisfactory for a heavy battleship and indicates the engines were in good condition.

THREE MEN IN A BOAT TOOK UNEXPECTED SWIM

William Schaeffer Makes Heroic Rescue Of His Two Fellow Voyagers.

John Wilan, Bill Shaeffer and Ingraham Probst had a harrowing experience down the river Sunday afternoon.

They had hired one of Mr. Richeson's boats and were enjoying a pleasant boatrip when Wilan became overly exuberant and upset the boat.

Bill was the only one who could swim and he promptly struck out for the shore leaving the other two clinging to the overturned boat.

Bill reached the shore just opposite Henryville in safety but his heart was touched at the sight of his two comrades and he swam back to the boat.

He helped Wilan to the shore and then towed Probst to dry land by shoving the boat along with Probst hanging onto it.

They had their Sunday clothes on and stood on the bank until their raiment dried out. Then they rowed back up the river but sat very quietly in their places to avert further trouble.

WILD WEST AT CHURCH FESTIVAL AT LINTON MILLS

An affidavit was filed in Squire Wimmer's court this afternoon, by Peter Harbold against Clovis Bowman and Baxter Phillips and a warrant was immediately issued to Sheriff Hodge for their arrest.

They are charged with having driven a team of horses hitched to a wagon through a crowd at a church festival given by the Epworth league of the Methodist church at Linton Mills, Saturday evening.

They whipped their horses and yelled and cursed, threatening to whip certain persons in the crowd. Their vicious act has stirred up much indignation in that vicinity and the offenders will be summarily dealt with.

Two Dead and Twenty Injured the Result of One Night's Work.

Two Hundred Soldiers Now On Duty--Troubles Believed Over.

[By Telegraph to The Age.] Danville, Ill., July 27.—Two killed and twenty-two wounded, the police station wrecked, the county jail with few of its windows left unshattered, the city in the hands of the state troops and a feeling of uneasiness and dread prevailing everywhere is the situation left by the race riot of Saturday night and early Sunday morning.

The revised list of dead and injured is as follows:

THE DEAD. John D. Metcalf, negro, lynched and burned. Henry Gatterman, killed by the negro, Metcalf.

PITCHFORK BEN'S SCATHING SARCASM AT NORTHERN LYNCHINGS

[By Telegraph to The Age.] Chicago, July 27.—Senator Tillman of South Carolina, who is to hold a series of debates in the northwest with Senator Burton of Kansas on the race question, passed through the city this afternoon.

"I notice that Illinois and Indiana and other northern states have recently adopted the southern way of settling the race question," he said. "That seems to be the only practicable way until the amendment to the constitution granting the negro suffrage has been repealed. We have shot 'em and hanged 'em and burned 'em in South Carolina until they almost know their proper place now, although the desire to vote, whether or not they know what they're voting for or against, frequently causes trouble.

"The farther north you go the more people you will find who know just how to settle the race question. It's so easy to determine the merits of a case when the parties to the dispute are a thousand or so miles away. But as the negro population increases in the north, and an occasional characteristic trait breaks out among those that live here, the people are confronted with the question that has vexed the inhabitants of the south for many years. And although the black race was never a subject race in the north, the northern people go out and settle the matter in the good old way that the southerners have been settling it and the only way that has proved effective heretofore.

"The Danville and Belleville lynchings in Illinois and the trouble in Evansville, Ind., and similar affairs in other northern states all go to show that the people of the north are studying the race question. Let the good work go on and the beauties of the fifteenth amendment will continue to be manifest to the world."

WATTERSON SCORES BRYAN AND TOSSES BOUQUETS AT GROVER

[By Telegraph to The Age.] Louisville, July 27.—From belaboring Cleveland Henry Watterson has turned to defend him against Bryan, a spicy editorial on Cleveland he said:

With characteristic want of tact judgment Mr. Bryan takes up the me. He charges the ex-president with having grown dishonestly rich, with having realized millions out of bond deal, in point of fact, with having sold himself and his country to Pierpont Morgan. There is no pretence to support such an accusation; to contradict it there is everything on the side of improbability." Mr. Watterson then takes Bryan to task and gives him some counsel, saying he is fast becoming the disappointed claimant and embittered where he might have been the healer, the builder, the very Warwick of his party. Says Mr. Watterson in conclusion:

"Even his old admirers will behold in him a moody, ill-humored man with a grievance and so will avoid his company. Of these things he should begin to suspect if not actually see. The Courier Journal has been from time to time warning him. Why will he not hear to our older experience, if not to our greater wisdom? There is yet time, but not if he wastes midnight oil and dissipates the noonday sun on the busted Cleveland boom" in today made further progress in the arrangements for the conclave.

A wall is being built around the rooms where the conclave will held. It is already ten feet high. At the sixth meeting of the congregation of cardinals forty-five cardinals were present. Cardinal Delia pe, voicing also the opinions of some of his colleagues, criticized the monies in connection with the incident of Leo XIII Saturday night. He said the cardinals did not participate in the entire procession and condemned generally of the lack of order. Cardinal Oreglia replied that he had already noted this and would punish any who were responsible.

MEETING MAY BE SHORT.

The ceremonial of the conclave established by Gregory XV, is to be followed at the coming meeting. The cardinals have decided during the conclave to eat in common in order to facilitate their work. A local paper takes the response of Cardinal Rampia to a question as to whether he believed the conclave would be of lengthy duration as follows:

On the contrary I think it will be very short. I believe two days will suffice to reach an agreement."

Another paper quotes Monsignor Nava as to the possibility of the election of a pope who would unite the vatican and the quinquennial.

No pope ever hated Italy. The government must reconcile itself to the election of Italy, on the occasion of the death of Leo showed himself disposed for a reconciliation."

AIR WILL BE FULL OF AIRSHIPS AT ST. LOUIS

Machines Invented Which it Is Claimed Will Successfully Solve The Problem.

Three more airships have been invented and will be entered in the World's Fair aerial tournament to compete for the grand prize of $100,000.

W. W. Morris, a Monte Vista, (Col.) mining engineer, is very sanguine that he has solved the problem of aerial navigation. His machine will be 30 feet in diameter and 105 feet long when fully rigged. Aluminum will be the material used in its construction but no gas bags will be used as in other flying machines. Mr. Morris says his machine will travel 100 miles an hour without lunging, tilting or tipping. He is carefully guarding the details of his plans.

E. A. Kindler, a Denver, Colorado man, has completed a model for an air ship and conducted a satisfactory test. He will enter it in the contest for the $100,000 prize at the Fair. Mr. Kindler claims his machine will average a speed of eighty miles an hour. Safety appliances are a feature of the airship. Canvas flaps will extend entirely around the balloon. These are limp except in case of sudden descent, when they open out like umbrellas or parachutes and are large enough to check descent to a gentleness devoid of danger. Motive power is furnished by a storage battery. The framework is made of aluminum and light steel tubing, with the motor, battery and propeller, which is six feet from tip to tip and has four blades, will weigh about three hundred pounds. A test made recently of the model was entirely satisfactory. The machine described a circle about fifty feet in diameter, rising, dipping and finally descended to its moorings without a hitch in its mechanism. The machine will be truly a formidable one in the coming contest.

Streator, Illinois, will be represented in the ariel tournament by an airship planned by Mr. Reiferscheid of that town. Reiferscheid's machine consists of a balloon pointed at both ends and lying in a horizontal position. Around this balloon are strips of aluminum strong enough to make substantial framework. At each end are the propellers, six in all, to be used in raising and lowering the machine and to assist in guiding it. A six horse-power gasoline motor will provide the motive power and the balloon will be filled with hydrogen gas and hermetically sealed. Large fans will provide a safety descent in case the balloon collapsed.

The news also comes by cable from Paris, France, that Santos-Duexperiment with his latest model, leaving his balloon shed going a considerable distance and returning with the airship under perfect control during the entire trip.

The largest hotel ever erected for an Exposition will be within the World's Fair grounds at St. Louis. A contract has been signed for the construction of this mammoth building the rates in which will be controlled by the Exposition. Rooms will be divided into four classes according to size, not less than 500 rooms of each class. The rates will be, on the European plan, for each person $1, $1.50, $2.00, $4.00 and $5.00 per day. The latter prices will command very large rooms with bath. Meals will be served to such of the guests as desire them at the following prices: breakfast and noon luncheon, 50 cents each; evening dinner, 75 cents. The hotel management will collect from each guest 50 cents extra each day to cover the price of admission to the Exposition grounds. The hotel will be made larger than now contemplated if the advance bookings of guests shall warrant.

BOWSER the PAINTER

Troubles He Had In Embellishing the Front Stoop of His Residence

[Copyright, 1903, by C. B. Lewis] M. R. BOWSER left for the office the other morning at the usual time without a hint that he would be home before the dinner hour, but shortly before noon he reappeared carrying a pot of ready mixed paint and a new brush. In reply to Mrs. Bowser's look of inquiry he explained:

"When I went out this morning I noticed that the front steps needed painting, and being it was a pleasant day I thought I'd come home and do the job."

"I was going to speak about it in a day or two and ask you to get a painter," she replied.

"There is no call for a painter. I got this much paint and this brush for a dollar and a half, and that will be all the cost. A painter would have

"I CAN DO THE WORK IN TWO HOURS," charged at least $6. I can do the work in two hours, and he would have dawdled around for three days."

"But you set out to varnish the front door two years ago and"

"And I varnished it. A jealous minded painter told me to mix in castor oil, and the door didn't dry for a month, but that was not my fault."

"And last year you painted the front fence and"

"And I made a good job of it too. Everybody brushed against it and I had three or four fights, but it's the best looking fence on the street today. It's no use your trying to dis-come out of doors for a sun bath. As the dog came trotting along he e-pid her and pushed open the gate. The cat ran up the steps and the dog after her, and both slid and slipped and came rolling down again as M. Bowser rose up and cried out at the man leaning on the gate:

"Try thunder, but if you let that dog in here you ought to be roiled in the road!"

"I didn't let him in," replied the man, "but you needn't get huffy about it. He hasn't hurt your old cat any."

"But look at the front steps!"

"And look at my dog. It'll take two hours to get the paint off him."

If a policeman hadn't come sauntering along there would have been a grapple, but he kicked the dog and ordered the owner to move on, and Mr. Bowser put in the next half hour picking hairs out of the paint and smoothing over the tracks.

Then he went around the corner to the paint store to get a pinch of putty, and on his way back he saw a man open the gate and walk up the steps and ring the bell.

That man was marked for destruction. He had rung for the second time, when he heard a great clatter and a hoarse breathing behind him, but before he could turn around he was yanked backward down the steps and mopped over the grass. He was a man who was canvassing the street in the interest of a home for old cats and had been told that Mrs. Bowser wouldn't give less than $10, but he didn't stop for the subscription. He wriggled loose while Mr. Bowser was trying to get a better hold, and he didn't stop to say goodby as he fled.

"Durn my hide if I don't dabble my hands in human gore," gasped Mr. Bowser as Mrs. Bowser came to the door to ask him not to kill any one. "I'm going to paint these steps if we have earthquakes, cyclones and cataclysms by the dozen, and the next thing on legs that walks up 'em has got to die!"

It was dinner time before the work was done. Then a board was nailed across, the sign "Paint" was hoisted into a conspicuous place, and Mr. Bowser retired from the field with a feeling of complacency. He changed his clothes, ate his dinner and sauntered out for an evening view of his work.

What he saw struck him dead in his tracks. The board had been removed and four tramps were sitting on the freshly painted steps in attitudes of de-courage me. I can save $5 and have a little play spill at the same time, and I'm going to do it. I'll show you a set of steps up which a king would be proud to walk."

That settled it. Half an hour later he had got into an old suit of clothes and was ready for business. His first move was to paint a sign of "Paint" and stick it up on the gate, and he had hardly begun on the steps when a man came along and halted to say:

"I do not exactly understand. I see no paint on this gate. Is it that you intend to paint it later on?"

"Don't you see paint on these steps?" asked Mr. Bowser as he rose up.

"I do, but the steps are not the gate. I am naturally of a confiding, trusting disposition, sir, but this is going too far—too far. If you really intend to paint the gate I have nothing to say, but if your object is to deceive people, then, sir—then let me say that you are an old scoundrel and pass on."

Mr. Bowser got down to the gate as fast as he could, but the kicker had too much the start of him. He took down the sign, however, and nailed it up on the steps, and after brushing away for fifteen minutes he entered the basement for a drink of water. He came out to find a knife grinder about to wring the front door bell, and after one look he yelled:

"Get out of this, you infernal idiot! Didn't you see the sign and the paint?" "You gotta no shears to sharpen, eh?" queried the man as he made new tracks in the fresh paint.

Mr. Bowser grabbed for him, but he twisted and dodged and made a bolt for the gate.

The work then went on for half an hour without interruption, and it was a fine and a day who walks in upon jection. As he appeared one of them arose and said:

"Please, kind sir, could you assist four worthy but unfortunate men who are on their way west to grow up with the country?"

Mr. Bowser couldn't. He leaned up against the house, and his cigar went out and the night came down, and when Mrs. Bowser and the cook finally coaxed him inside he glared around him and his lips moved without uttering words, and it was plain that some awful shock had upset his mental system.

TOTS DARTED UNDER THE HOOFS OF TROTTER HORSE

Quick Presence of Mind of Dr. Marshall All That Saved Jay Martter's Children.

There was a hair-raising incident on lower Main street Saturday afternoon, that caused more than one face to blanch.

The ball game was just over and the street was crowded with carriages as well as pedestrians.

Like quail, two little tots, children of Jay Martter, darted forth from the sidewalk in front of city hall, to cross the street.

They darted directly in front of the rig of Dr. Marshall, who was driving up the street.

The knees of the horse knocked down the smaller of the two, and the doctor, with rare presence of mind, and considerable agility, pulled his horse back on its haunches.

Bystanders sprang in and snatched the children away from the horse's upraised hoofs, and carried them in safety to the sidewalk.

The youngsters were thoroughly frightened and were screaming like Comanches. When they reached the sidewalk they were righted, and at once began an inventory. At last one chubby fist disclosed the treasure they thought was lost. It held a nickel.

They started across the street again serenely happy.

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED.

While little information has been allowed to escape from the conference held at Cleveland between Tom L. Johnson and a select coterie of his factional friends, there are three things that stand out as having been determined upon.

The first is that with the proper encouragement Johnson will be a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination—whether that is to be forthcoming the events of the next ten days will demonstrate; the second is that a great effort will be made by Johnson to capture the legislature, the governorship to be sacrificed to that end; the third is that so far as Johnson and his following are concerned the Democratic state convention will endorse some one for United States senator.

The last two propositions are acknowledged by those who attended the meeting; the first is just as plainly forecasted from the trend of the information at hand as well as from what is not denied as to the results of the conference.

So far as the Johnson candidacy is concerned the action of the Medina county Democratic convention a week ago, a part of the Cleveland congressional district where Johnson is expected to open his campaign, early in August, clearly pointed the way. It is the understanding that as soon as some details are cleared away there will be an announcement from some of Johnson's friends, if not from the boss himself, that will settle his position. Those best posted are certain that the coming of Bryan to Ohio the first week of August, presages the Johnson candidacy, and that the Nebraska leader will indicate his desires at the meeting of the Champaign county Democratic convention on the 5th prox., to be attended not only by Bryan, but by Johnson and John J. Lentz.

That will mark the opening of an active campaign on behalf of Johnson. In the meantime unpledged delegations to the state convention will be chosen.

ONE MAN'S OPINION.

That picnic held by the Chicago Democracy, or by the Bryan wing thereof Saturday, somehow reminds us of a certain banquet which the Bryan Democrats of Iowa held in Des Moines several weeks ago, and at which the Nebraska Peerless Leader was an honored guest. Upon that occasion it will be remembered that the plans and specifications were all prepared for the capturing of the coming state convention in the name of strict fidelity to the Kansas City platform. But the state convention day rolled around, when lo, and behold, the enemy began to crawl out of the bushes in which they had remained hidden for some time, captured the convention and threw the Kansas City platform out into the back alley.

That Chicago Democratic picnic was a typical Bryanic hullabaloo. The Carter Harrison crowd were all present. "The odium of the last Cleveland administration" came in for the usual amount of exorcism. Under the enchanting spell of Bryanic oratory visions of victory arose to cheer the weary, and of the pie counter to enthrall the hungry.

However, there are several thousands and voters in Chicago and in Illinois who consider themselves Democrats and who will probably assert themselves at the proper time. It is safe to say that they also will express themselves concerning the Kansas City platform hoodoo in the same manner in which the Iowa Democrats have done.

That Chicago Democratic picnic may be regarded as simply one of the final spasms of a fast waning cause.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

KING FOLLOWS MOTHER'S LEAD

[By Telegraph to The Age]
Belfast, July 27.—The reception to the king and queen was most cordial. Many addresses were presented.

The king, replying to the address of the lord mayor, said it was his intention to follow the footsteps of his mother and make the well-being of his people, the prosperity of Ireland and the peace of all nations his constant purpose. He unveiled the statue of Queen Victoria at City hall.

William Compton went to Pittsburgh Friday night on business.

Just a Jab at J. Ab.

"What ho!" quoth affable J. Ab. The man with the gift of gab, "My tears are raining 'Cause McConnell is gaining—My run's going forward like a crab."

That Boy.

The shop was in a furore of excitement. The devil slipped into the sanctum with distended eyes.

"Have y' seen 'im?" he whispered like a stage villain.

"Who?"
"Wy him. He's gone luney, I tell y'. Been steppin' around there as prancin' like as Amish Girl at the matinee, and a-whistlin' and a-singin' in a way that makes Billman look like thirty cents. Oh he's rumdum that's all there is to it."

"Who is? What is? What the Sam-hill you talking about, kid, anyway?"
"Him. The foreman. He's gone daffy I tell you. Have a look yourself."

Of course the lad exaggerated slightly, but he had a right to. For everybody around The Age office this morning was aware that Walter Riggs the foreman, had grown several feet taller since Saturday.

It was readily explained however. It is a boy, a nine-pounder too, and they do say that it looks just like its pa.

More than that it is the first-born, and the world knows that at that time a man is prouder than a politician. Cigars? Oh, thanks, only one. Smoke up!

IMAGINED THE TRAIN WAS HIS OWN ICE WAGON

The laugh is on Charley Renner today. Yesterday he started for Zanesville on the train.

It was hot and sultry and Charley had no one to talk to so he stretched out on the seat and was soon far off in dreamland.

Suddenly the passengers on the train were startled to see Charley start down the aisle with his arms outstretched in front of him and yelling "Whoa! Whoa!" at the top of his voice.

Charley had dreamed that he was back in Coshocton on his ice wagon and imagined his team was running off. That's all.

STUDENTS STRANDED AND FOOTSORE IN KANSAS

Broadbrim Soliloquizes on Things Being Not as They Seem--A Letter Full Of Salty Breezes.

I was reflecting last week on the punishment which the law has declared for a suicide. The law declares that the suicide shall be punished. Several hundred years ago a stake was driven through the body of the suicide as he or she lay in the graves. Now, if the design was to punish the suicide, it may be very good, but how are you going to do it? You may drive a hundred stakes through his body and he never feels them; then comes the question, who is punished? Who is hurt?

Imperious Caesar, dead and turned to clay,

May stop a hole to keep the wind away.

Oh, that the earth, which kept the world in awe,

Should patch a wall to expel the winter's flaw.

Has the suicide a right to end his or her life? These reflections were forced on my mind the other day, of a young girl who leaped from a ferry-boat into the North river. She had absolutely nothing to complain of; her surroundings were pleasant, she was loved by her parents and loved them dearly in return. A friend of hers had taken her life by drowning and this so preyed upon her mind that she could not resist following her example—she leaped into the North river. Another woman had a quarrel with her husband; she swallowed carbolic acid; she rushed out into the street with a baby in her arms; the child was severely hurt and the mother was dead. The ancient Romans held the right over their slaves to kill them without any given cause. Many nations held that man or woman had absolute right over their own lives; they could take them or let them alone, just as they pleased. There is one thing certain, that in this great city of New York we have had within a few weeks a great deal more than our share of suicides.

An amusing piece of information comes from the west; we have had abundant crops of wheat and corn, but lacked the labor to gather them or the cars to transport them to a point where they will do the most good. A number of romantic students resolved to go west during their vacation and help the farmers and line their pockets with shining dollars at the same time. But laboring in the wheat fields where the stalks are as high as one's head and the corn requires a step-ladder to get at the ears, and in addition to these discomforts, with the sun pouring down on your head at 200 degrees, would take the heart out of a paving stone. The start was glorious—work began with the rising sun; about 6 o'clock, having got up an appetite that you could eat a pickled rhinoceros you were called to breakfast.

Breakfast finished you are ready for work again. It does not take long to convince you that the sun is shining somewhere. The streams of water begin to run down your back; weakness strikes at your knees; there is an irresistible feeling of collapse; there is not any shade, for trees do not grow there, and there are twelve good, solid hours ahead of you yet; by noontime you realize that you are the damndest fool that ever went west. There are no eight hours up there as the rule of labor. Labor begins with the rising of the sun and does not even end with its setting. There are chores to do about the house, and by 9 o'clock you sink on the ground and say to yourself "There is no place like home." A large number of students are stranded there. They have no money, no shoes for their feet, hardly any covering for their backs and they are the most forlorn American citizens that ever took Horace Greeley's advice, "Go west young man; go west."

There is trouble among the Republicans at home. Mayor Low would like to be renominated for the position he now holds. The position of mayor of Greater New York is quite equal to the presidency of the United States. It is an office that grows greater every year, and is a worthy object of any man's ambition. Mayor Low, if he enters the canvass, will undoubtedly meet with a severe and unflinching opposition. There are a great many very clever gentlemen, old and experienced in politics, who would like to be mayor as well as Seth Low, and these will join in a solid phalanx to beat him. This he knows, and it seems as if the president, who has been his friend for many years has been figuring on some agreeable place to set him down in case he should fail in receiving the coming nomination. A vacancy exists in Rome, or will exist when Low is ready to take it. A lucky man is this same Seth Low, born with a golden spoon in his mouth, he did not even have to descend to a silver ladle.

A partner in one of our greatest mercantile houses and twice the mayor of an imperial city, when most men are entering in public life; the president of what will be one of the greatest universities, he marches in to receive the reward of his election at the head of a procession of learned professors who were great in learning and old in service when Seth Low was a neophyte to enter a college life. The audience which greeted his entrance was the most splendidly educated body of men that Columbia college has ever seen. Who shall say that gold is not the leading power here. His father and himself had been great benefactors to Columbia college and had stood by it in the hour of its need, yet it seemed something strange and out of place when he announced that an extensive range of learning was not necessary for the presidency of a college; that he need be more of a financier than a great intellectual power. His seeking and getting into the presidency of Columbia college was wonderful; his getting out of it more wonderful still. Back into the pool of politics he makes a jump, but where he will land the next time the prophet of the future alone can tell.

It is not a pleasure to me to record the downfall of any man who has occupied honorable public station, but more especially painful is it for the downfall of a man whom you knew, trusted and honored. It is hard to believe in the shameful character of his offense. He had received the endorsement of his fellow citizens and those who were the friends of a lifetime. They elected him and sent him to Washington and placed him in the broad highway of political preferment, but no sooner does he find himself firmly in his seat than he becomes the tool or the lowest class of gambling politicians. The position he enjoyed was one that he quired the highest character. George W. Beavers was not equal to the task. The government's attention was called to what is known as automatic cashiers. Mr. Beavers had some knowledge of the article and on his representation several hundred were bought at a much higher price than was demanded of other purchasers.

George W. Beavers engineered the deal and the reward of this treachery to the government was $12,500 in hard cash. Mr. Beavers knew very well what he was doing. He passed for a high, honest and honorable man—if the grand jury's indictment is true he turned out to be a cheat and a rogue—and should receive the most condign punishment that the offense calls for.

I thought when I heard of the reception of the Boers in London that the end had not yet come—the fighting South Africans had laid down their arms. I felt no assurance that the White Angel of peace had spread its snowy wings over the Transvaal and that the time had come when the sword should be beaten into the plow share and the spear head into a pruning hook, and man should learn the art of war no more. These hopes have not been realized and now it is proposed by England to feed them no longer on lollypops and sugar, but show them the efficacy of more drastic treatment, and if necessity demands it, the rule of the red right hand. A garrison of 25,000 fighting men will quarter in different parts of that dominion, many of the soldiers will carry out their wives, houses will be provided and emigration encouraged, and the government hopes in a few years to see the rising of a loyal population. General Botha, who was the principal leader in the late rebellion, expresses his contempt and hatred of the newly proposed government, and the papers of Great Britain, with few exceptions, declare their belief that this disloyal general should be deported to some other land and forbidden to dwell on South African soil. This is the punishment accorded to President Kruger, General Botha.

The annual excursion to the Seashore of 1903 will be run Thursday, August 6th. Excursion tickets will be sold on that date to nine of the most attractive resorts on the Atlantic Coast, Cape May, Angelesa, Avalon, Holly Wildwood, N. J., and Rehoboth, Del.

Notable Occasion

On last Saturday a family reunion and birthday celebration was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Waters, two miles northeast of Otsego, Muskingum county. It was the seventy-eighth birthday of Mrs. Waters. Mr. Waters is in his ninety-first year.

Friends began to gather at 3:30 o'clock. At the hour for dinner there were about 175 children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren, friends and neighbors waiting to partake of the bounteous dinner. For want of shade in the old orchard the tables were spread in the new baid. The atmosphere was very warm but E. B. Castor of Otsego brought a box of palm leaf fans and they were distributed and everybody tried to keep cool.

Rev. J. Robert Campbell of Byesville, gave an interesting talk. He told of how Mr. Waters came to that community seventy-five years ago, an orphan boy and settled on the farm, where he now lives. He spoke of their Christian integrity and fidelity through all these years.

Miss Sprague rendered a very appropriate solo, "The Holy City."

Miss Mae Walker sang a number of songs with guitar accompaniment.

While some enjoyed the music others enjoyed croquet, target shooting, etc.

When the time came that all must part to go to their homes they joined in singing that old hymn "Leaning on the Everlasting Arm," and wished Father and Mother Waters many happy returns.

Those present from a distance were Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Waters, Zanabville; Dr. and Mrs. J. G. Shiner, Mrs. Frank Scott and daughter, Mabel, of Newark; Robert Scott, Cambridge; Rev. J. Robert Campbell, Byesville; Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Waters and daughter, Pearl, Mrs. Lucy Baker and daughter, Rose, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Werts and daughter, Opal, Mrs. David Hosfelt, Miss Louise Robinson and Harry Wiggins, Coshocton.

Last August I bought two packages Rocky Mountain Tea. It kept our family of six well the whole year. It's a great family medicine.—Mrs. S. P. Wheelock, Indianapolis. 35 cents C. E. Anderson.

SILK MOUSELAIN.

When we consider the great prosperity of the people today and the vast amount of money circulating everywhere and the extremely high prices prevailing in many lines, you wonder how we can do this. But the fact is we are doing it every day.

Some people said when the Fountain opened their New Store their prices would be high. We heard this frequently before opening our new store, but we have not heard from these people lately. It is just to the contrary—the larger we can make our business the cheaper we can sell and will sell the goods.

SUES SALOON KEEPER FOR SELLING BEER

Mrs. Mary Hartman Wants $2000 Damages From E. J. Martter.

Hartman's Taste For Liquor Gets Him Into Divorce Court.

A damage case, novel in some respects, was commenced in common pleas court Saturday afternoon by Nicholas & Merrell on behalf of Mrs. Mary E. Hartman who lives on Second street next to the Hanley mill. Edward J. Martter, who conducts a saloon on Main street is sued for $2,000.

In her petition she states that she is entirely dependent upon her husband for support; that when sober he is a diligent and careful workman and earns from $1.70 to $2 per day; that he spends every cent he makes for liquor and sometimes remains under its influence for several days. She says that Mr. Martter is well acquainted with her husband's habits and failings and that in spite of this fact he sells Mr. Hartman liquor.

She says that on the third of March 1902, she gave notice in writing to Mr. Martter not to sell her husband any more liquor but he paid no attention to it. Since that time her husband has not contributed over ten dollars to the support of his wife and their minor children, the oldest of whom is only 14 years.

She has been compelled to work out for a living and as a result of this, combined with the cruel treatment she has received at his hands, her nerves have become completely shattered and she is now a physical wreck.

In view of these facts she thinks she has suffered damage to the amount of $2000 by Mr. Martter's failure to regard her notice.

She also states that Mr. Hartman sends their little girls to the saloon to get him liquor.

TWO WRECKS HERE SUNDAY

Two small wrecks added to the interest of life on a railroad Sunday to local crews of the Panhandle. A west bound freight was the first to meet with an accident, near the W. V. tower. The trucks were pulled from under a car, mixing things up considerably. The Dennison wrecking crew was called and just as they finished clearing the tracks, they were summoned to the south end yards, to put an engine on the track.

PEOPLE WHO CAN'T SLEEP.

Many people go to bed—not to sleep, but to think—to tumble and toss—to get up, walk about until tired. Nature gives way and a few fitful hours of sleep are obtained just before dawn—a sleep that does not rest—a sleep from which one wakes weary and tired, wholly unfitted to take up the daily routine of household, shop or office duties. That this condition goes on uncorrected for is almost criminal, when the well-known, time-tested and tested powers of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills to give restful natural sleep have been so fully proven in such cases.

Mr. B. A. Stevenson of No. 209 W. Main street, Coshocton, Ohio, says:—"From a personal use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills I got at C. E. Anderson's drug store, I can say it is a medicine that can and will steady weak nerves, give restful sleep to the weak. This I know from results obtained in my own case." 50c a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D. are on every package.
